It appears, too, that all the Alaskan fur seals are born on these islands; that they are distinct animals, and have none of the characteristics of fish, and will drown in the water until they are taught to swim by their elders. In former years fur seals were found in great numbers on various islands of the South Pacific Ocean; but after a comparatively short period of indiscriminate slaughter the rookeries were deserted, the animals having been killed or driven from their haunts; so that now the only existing rookeries are those in Alaska, another in the Russian part of Bering Sea. and a third on Lobos Island, at the mouth of the river Plate in South America. All these rookeries are under the protection of their several Governments. The best estimate as to the number of these animals on the Alaska rookeries places it at about four millions; but a marked diminution of the number is noticed within the last two or three years, which is attributed by the testimony to the fact that unauthorized persons during the summers of 1886, 1887, and 1888 had fitted out expeditions and cruised in Alaskan waters, and by the use of fire arms destroyed hundreds of thousands of these animals, without regard to age or sex....
