AS IS

Copper Canyon Press. Paperback / softback. Book Condition: new. BRAND NEW, As Is, James Galvin, "James Galvin has a voice and a world, perhaps the two most difficult things to achieve in poetry."--The Nation James Galvin's poems have zero percent body fat. His tightly controlled and detailed poems evoke measured optimism in a spare existential world where certain characters--"The Mastermind" and the "Members of the Board"--are recurring shadows. Like fables suggesting new truths, personal narratives and love poems intertwine to confront the various paradoxes of domestic life, art, and politics, and the line "All poems are love poems" leans hard against "Some poems are better off dead." In As Is, both claim their hard-won place. I think black holes are just plasticGarbage bags blowing down the midnight highwayThat is the Universe. There aren't as many dimensions as we thought.A black hole can disappear anything that nears it.We all know that.The farthest away I've ever been is in my own home, Finally cleaning out my daughter's roomSo another little girl can live here.The black plastic bag I held in my handWas infinitely capacious.I mean I could throw anything in there. James Galvin is a Wyoming rancher and on the permanent faculty at the Iowa Writers' Workshop. He is the author of six books of poetry, a novel, and the acclaimed memoir The Meadow. He lives in Tie Siding, Wyoming, and Iowa City, Iowa.
